«Bento» Spirit

A passion inspired from Japan

Bento is a Japanese term referring to a meal in a container eaten outside the home.

Deeply set in the Japanese food culture, they come in a great range of shapes and colors and can be used anywhere: as a snack in the train, a lunch for workers, during a picnic under cherry blossom trees or as a snack for kids.

The Japanese use it every day to bring their lunch at work or to carry children meals.

The bento box has become a true fashion accessory in Asia and English-speaking countries

The food lovers will give free rein to their creativity, will have fun decorating their meal and share their small works of art with the whole bento community.

Eco-friendly and Reusable, bento boxes are perfect alternatives to disposable packaging. As you can keep the leftovers from your lunch, you don't waste any food.

Money-saving, with the advantage to carry easily your own prepared meal, you save time and money.
